CARMEL MIDDLE SCHOOL was the site of the annual kite festival last weekend, where kids, kites and adults had a windy, fun-filled day.

New editor named

General Manager Cliff Butler has announced the appointment of David Cole to the position of Editor-in-Chief of The Carmel Pine Cone. Cole replaces Michael Butowitsch, who is moving to Southern California after serving as the paper's editor for two and a half years.

Cole, a Carmel Valley resident who has lived on the Peninsula for six years, has been a reporter for the Pine Cone since August, 1975. He has covered a wide range of stories, concentrating on city government.

Cole received his BA at the University of Michigan and later worked as a general assignment reporter for the Paterson (New Jersey) News. He served two years in the army, as an information officer and also as a battalion adjutant. After moving to the Peninsula in 1971, Cole worked as a free-lance writer-photographer.

In taking over the job of Editor-in-Chief, Cole also has charge of The Carmel Valley Outlook and Peninsula Scene.

from our readers' point of view

Editor's Note: The following is a true story sent in by one of our readers. The action took place last week.

Would you believe one little maverick lamb could escape, wander freely alone, high in the wild hills above the Carmel Valley Village, evade a hungry prowling mountain lion, coyotes, foxes, all the while eluding his would be mistress and her various helpers that were trying to capture him?

Well listen to this story about Horace, we shall call him Horace for the purpose of this story. It all started when a young lady decided as her F.F.A. project to raise a lamb. This was her first experience with sheep. Even though Horace was half grown, he had never been away from his mother or his sheep family.

Arriving at his new home, no mother, no familiar animal companions, new noises and smells proved to be too much for the lamb. He had to wait only one day for his chance. Feeding time came, Marilee, his new owner, being unaware of Horace's intentions did not fasten the gate behind her. Out dashed Horace, heading for the hills far above his new home. Straight up Country Club Drive and onto a large ranch where the wild hills beckoned. Perhaps to search for his lost family.

He was sighted from the ranch house by a young man with a kindly heart. Taking up a rope he set out on foot to catch the fellow and return him to his owner. He knew the perils of the hills for that lone little maverick. Also hot on his trail was one V.W. with Marilee behind the wheel. Somewhere along the way two more friends joined the posse. Horace's climbing instinct quickly took him out of reach, miles above his would be captors. From on high he watched, bleating in a distant voice now and then. At times he would disappear to return, hanging around the horse pastures. He felt he had found some of his friends even though they did not know him. The four horses would not tolerate Horace inside their fence. Tired by now, the lamb did not mind, he just lay outside the pasture gate and watched, he was a little less lonely that way.

This went on for three days and nights.

Then came the moment of truth. It was discovered the Cougar was back, the big cat had made a fresh kill the night before. The rancher on his rounds had found the fallen deer in a deep canyon, with all the familiar signs the big cat usually left. The cougar had never been regarded as an enemy, just a part of the cycle of nature. He had never wantonly killed in any way except a deer for his food. Now the picture was a little more threatening... if Horace was not found that night it would be "Goodbye Lambchops." With this in mind two people from the ranch set out at twilight to see if they would have better luck in the dusk at finding and rescuing the lamb.

After an hour of searching it had become very dark and they were heading back down. Rounding a curve the car lights picked up a shape ahead. Not Horace, but there was Mr. Cougar in all his wild beauty, only at this moment he was a symbol of death for one little sheep. Frightened our cougar leaped into the dark canyon below. Not a sound that night from the cat or the lamb. Silent goodbyes were said to Horace.

Imagine the shock the next morning when below the ranch house was heard a Baa, Baa. There stood Horace telling his goodbyes (we hope) to his vacation spot.

He had chosen his own time and way to return home from the hills. Carefully picking his path he retraced his route of escape, down Country Club drive, turning at Ridgeway, ending up across the street from his new home. Marilee's neighbors kept sheep and a horse, these the lamb knew to be friends. And there he was found visiting with his new found friends.

Returning home from school Marilee was overwhelmed to find her F.F.A. project once again going strong. How smart can one dumb little animal be? I know I shall never eat lamb again.

First communion

Families and friends shared a special moment in the lives of twenty young parishioners on Sunday who received their First Communion at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church.

During the morning Mass, Kristen Barelli and Randy Jensen led the procession to the altar and carried the offertory of bread and wine. Each of the seven little girls wore veils, long white gowns, and placed a cameillia at the altar. White turtle neck sweaters and navy blue slacks were the order of the day for the six young gentlemen.

Rev. Paul Redmond, a retired Navy chaplain who resides at Del Mesa Carmel, celebrated the Mass which coincided with his 70th birthday. He presented a beautiful homily in the absence of Fr. John McSweeney who was called to Ireland by the illness of his mother.

Ruth Allaire and Myrna Weber created a special setting for the memorable occasion with white bows centered with yellow daisies marking each pew and tapers tucked in large bouquets of daisies placed about the church.

A reception for the children, their relatives and friends followed in the church hall planned by Mrs. William Brashears who was assisted by Mrs. William Zumach, Mrs.

Gerald Dalton and her daughters, Mimi and Colleen. The cake, cut by Gary & Theresa Paddock, was a work of confectionary art inscribed "Happy First Communion Day" and decorated with a prayer book of frosting and yellow and white flowers.

Teaching the Christian instruction classes the first semester was Mrs. Irwin Johnson. Mrs. W.G.B. Hatch provided the special instruction for the First Communion received by: Aliza Lazanoff, Tricia Ward, Dina Mazon,

A FEW FARM STRUCTURES and a field cultivated for artichokes are all that are on the Odello East property right now.

New Plan for Odello

By BARBARA CAMERA

A new plan for the Odello property that would retain 97 acres as farmland and open space while utilizing other areas for residential and commercial structures, was presented to the Carmel

Planning Commission at its Mar. 23 meeting.

"The basic idea is to keep the main body of the property in agriculture and make improvements on the rest to generate enough income to justify keeping that acreage in farming," explained Sebastian Bordonaro, architect for the project.

The controversial development of this 134-acre site east of Highway 1 and another 156 acres along the ocean has been in the mill for seven years. The State finally purchased the ocean property four years ago, but is currently leasing the area back to the Odello's who are using it to grow artichokes. The eastern portion, which is still owned by the Odello's, is being leased out for farming of general crops. It's the various development plans for this section that have run into problems over the years.

Bordonaro, who made the presentation to the commission, was recently tasked by the property owners to come up with a plan that would be as well accepted and financially self-sufficient as possible. The land has been a money-losing venture for the Odello's for many years.

After meeting with numerous groups and agencies who have been vocal on the issue of the property use in the past, Bordonaro has come up with the following six-part plan:

— Six acres along the front of the property would be used as a commercial area, primarily as a farmers' market, but with other agriculture-related activities to be determined later.

— Seven acres are designated as the site of a combination spa and country inn consisting of 200 units.

— Part of the rear area of the property would be used for a public service center. Types of activities to be located here might include a corporation yard for the city or county, a lumber yard, and plumbing and electrical service centers.

— Six acres are designated to contain 50 condominium units.

— 62 acres would be retained as farmland.

— 35 acres would remain as open space for recreational use.

"The main thrust," Bordonaro said, "is to keep the present character there which is agriculture — open and natural."

He added that the Carmel River, which runs through the property, would remain available for public use.

Carmel Planning Commission members seemed to agree that this plan was an improvement over a formerly proposed plan — one that was approved by the county — calling for a 300-unit hotel and 298 residential units. However, they did not react too favorably to Bordonaro's idea of having a commercial activity directly along the highway, and suggested moving it further back on the property.

The question of the feasibility of building on this land, since it is in the flood plain, was also raised. According to Bordonaro, structures can be built on the fringe of a flood plain if certain precautions are taken, such as building dikes or raising the ground level where structures will be placed. He pointed out that the Odello property already has dikes, although some would have to be rebuilt or raised.

Nightspots and lightspots

Never let it be said that the Peninsula Scene does not offer something for everyone. On Central Avenue at 16th Street in Pacific Grove every Saturday night at 8:30 you can waltz your brains out at the Chatagua Hall. Last weekend a dozen or so elegantly attired couples shuffled across the floor of what apparently used to be a basketball gymnasium. The ladies were dressed in flowing chiffon and the gentlemen in satiny suits of pink, orange, and other brilliant colors. A drummer, clarinet player and organist provide the "traditional rhythms." Although called The Gay Nineties Dance Group, youngsters in the sixties were seen cavorting across the floor on Saturday. Dancers of all ages are welcome.

On the other side of the hill, the traditional spot to boogie down is The Barn at Mission Ranch at the south end of Dolores Street in Carmel. They always have a band and it only costs a buck to get in. They serve booze, so you have to be 21 to get in. Last Saturday (it's only open Friday and Saturday) Park Hotel was doing their thing by 9:30 p.m., but everyone was content to sit around enjoying at first. By 10, however, the bodies were hard at it out on the big dance floor.

Take note, there's a recently opened tavern called The Tavern at 430 Washington Street in Monterey, and they've added live entertainment to their weekend fare. Next weekend watch out for the Bootleg Boogie Band out of San Francisco there.

For those of you who've heard about Sioux Scott, down at the Outrigger every weekend... Well, it's all true. You don't mess around with Sioux, she's got the fastest (and zaniest) wits on the Peninsula. But she can melt your heart with "Let in the Clowns," so watch out — she's a double threat.

In the evening, five young Mexican-American Valley residents elected to receive their first communion in Spanish.

Flowers covered the kneeling benches placed in front of the altar where Araceli Regalado, Sylvia Zarazua, Leticia Regalado, Lucy Barreto, and Fernando Regalado knelt on white satin pillows with their four Godmothers and one Godfather.

The four young ladies wore long white lace trimmed gowns and veils held by beaded tiaras. Young Fernando was handsome in a suit and each child carried a decorated candle with their prayer book and rosary.

Fr. Juan Oronoz of the Carmelite Monastery celebrated the Mass in Spanish. The church was beautifully decorated by Mrs. Jose Zarazua who with her husband entertained the children, their families and friends at a Fiesta following the Mass at their home.

CV Kiwanis save water

A recent article on carousels becoming yet another nostalgic memory listed the Fleischhacker merry-go-round as the only remaining place in the country where one could catch the "gold ring." Not so, according to the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club who have embarked upon a meaningful water conservation project offering for sale a patented water saving device, "The Gold Ring."

This device can be installed in most toilet tanks flushing mechanism simply and without tools in seconds. It provides for full control of flush water use similar to that of aircraft, boat or recreational vehicle toilets. Also users report that toilet leaks are eliminated and 44 per cent of the normal flush water requirements can be saved, as indicated by independent laboratory report. Over 30 per cent of savings on residential water consumption has been documented.

The Gold Rings may be obtained at the Village Liquors, CV General Store, CV Market, CV Appliance Repair for a $2.00 donation which will benefit the CV Kiwanis Youth Activity fund.

CVLL needs help

HELP WANTED: "Two coaches and two managers" are needed for two Mid-Valley Farm League teams — no experience necessary." With a record number of sign-ups for the 1977 season, most teams now consist of 18 players. It is imperative that someone who enjoys working with boys and girls contact Carmel Valley Little League president, Jack Garrett, 624-9616 so that 36 players will be ready for competition on Opening Day.

MORE help wanted: Saturday has been scheduled as the traditional "Ball Park Clean-Up Day." Bring the whole family — shovels, rakes, etc. — and join the CV Little League officials at 9:00 a.m. this Saturday at the Park on Paso Hondo. A great many improvements and renovations were made at the field last year and a pre-season "manicure" will have all in readiness for a smoothly run season.

Santa Clara match

Returning to the Valley from the Santa Clara County Kennel Club Sanctioned Dog Match with a series of successes was Ashley Swanson who placed first in the Junior Handling Division.

Ashley was handling the 11 month old Norwegian Elk Hound which she co-owns with Mrs. Pat Craig. It was the first show for "Vin Melca's Count Down" and obviously he and Ashley were in top form. "Downey" placed first in the Puppy 9-12 month class; took first in Best of Breed and Placed 4th in the Hound Group.

Typical volunteer

Named typical Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services Representative for that organization at the April 26th Peninsula celebration of National Volunteer Week was Valley-ite Mrs. John S. Power. The announcement was made when Julie, a two term past president of the organization, was the surprise recipient of a birthday cake during a recent board meeting.

Other important business during the meeting was setting the date for their 24th annual House and Garden tour with proceeds benefiting the Visiting Nurses Association. The May 11th tour — mark your calendars, please — will combine with a tea at Robert Louis Stevenson School.

Donations approved included $500 in camperships for locally handicapped children with the Boy Scouts of America; $500 toward the educational services of the Museum on Wheels sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art; and a $2500 grant for gifted children to be paid in installments to the Lyceum of the Monterey Peninsula.

Granddaughter baptized

There was a special baptism at the Carmel Valley Community Chapel recently when Rev. Don Johnson baptized his granddaughter, Lauren La Mae Johnson, who was born June 22 in Minneapolis, Minnesota. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Steven Johnson who were present at the services with their older daughters, Jennifer and Erin. Steve, "Stevie," and their girls have returned to Minnesota to organize a summer move to Salinas where Steve will be associated with a medical group.

CV Women's Club lunch

The Carmel Valley Women's Club will hold their April luncheon meeting in the Garden Room of the La Playa Hotel on Wednesday, April 6. Ladies and their guests are invited to meet in the bar at 12:00 for "No Host" cocktails followed by the luncheon at 12:30.

"The Wit and Wisdom of Walter Colton" is the topic selected by guest speaker, Robert Reese. Mr. Reese, a member of the Monterey County Parks and Recreation Department, is a director of the History and Art Association. Seating is limited so make your reservations soon — donations are $5.00 including luncheon, tax and tip.

Why waste wastewater?

— the major concern is health —

Private citizens are not being permitted to use secondary effluent plant sewage to supplement their water allotments because of health concerns, says Walter Wong, county environmental health director.

Although an estimated one million gallons of water per day goes through Carmel's secondary effluent plant, very little of this is being put to acceptable uses such as landscape irrigation, watering golf courses and cemeteries, on construction projects, or anywhere there is no direct human contact. Instead, it is flowing into the bay.

At least one reason for this lack of use seems to be because of the health department's restrictions on effluent use, so Wong was at a meeting of the Planning Commission on Mar. 23 to answer questions on these restrictions and the use of secondary effluent during the water crisis.

Secondary effluent, according to Wong, has 90 per cent of the solids and bacteria removed, but even after chlorination, some viruses and bacteria can still survive. It's because there's a chance that these surviving organisms might be something dangerous such as typhoid or dysentery that use restrictions have been imposed.

"This may be ultra-conservative," said Wong, "but our major concern is health."

Presently, the use of secondary effluent is limited to municipalities, large construction companies, golf courses and cemeteries. The following restrictions are placed on these users:

—The user district is responsible for keeping a record of who takes the sewage, the amount taken, destination and who drove the vehicle.

—Water must be used immediately and not stored in any container because of the odor caused by solids settling.

—No upward spraying where it might settle on people.

—No irrigation while it's raining since this would result in running sewage.

—No use of effluent within 50 feet of fountains unless the fountain is covered. Other public use fixtures such as park benches should also be covered.

—No spraying during high winds.

—When irrigating a park, people must be kept out of the area until it dries. Watering these areas at night is recommended.

—The truck used to carry the effluent must be labelled "reclaimed water" and not used to transport other substances.

The requirement to use the effluent immediately and not store it precludes any easy use of the water by residents, Planning Commission chairman Edward Neroda pointed out, even if the effluent usage wasn't restricted to large-quantity users.

Wong indicated that the health department has also been skeptical about permitting the use of gray water in the home (from the shower, kitchen and washing machine) and is keeping a close watch on whether there is any increase in cases of typhoid, dysentery and other enteric or parasitic diseases.

Tour canceled

Latest in a long list of "drought casualties" is the cancellation of the House and Garden Tour and Flower Show planned as a Spring benefit by the Carmel Valley Garden Association.

However, several special events have been scheduled for the local "Petal Pushers" including their April meeting — moved to WEDNESDAY, the 13th, which will feature Molly Appleby who will demonstrate the art of flower arranging.

The May meeting is in the planning stages for a field trip to view the wild flowers in Garrapata Canyon. More about this in a future OUTLOOK or at the April 13th meeting in the Tularcitos multipurpose room at 8:00 p.m. Guests are always welcome to attend.

CSD seeks engineer

The Carmel Sanitary District is in the process of advertising for a staff engineer, to work under the supervision of the general manager Max Drewien.

The district is offering a starting salary of between $13,000 and $15,000, depending on experience and qualifications. The requirement is only that applicants be civil engineers, possibly with some wastewater engineering in their background or education.

The hiring process will probably take about three months.

The object of hiring an engineer is to reduce the need for the district's engineering firm, Kennedy

Engineers, who must come down from San Francisco whenever technical advice is required. Although the board voted in favor of hiring this addition to the district's staff almost a year ago, this is the first action that has been taken on the decision.

Recycling update

it's still alive and struggling

By BARBARA CAMERA

Although conserving and recycling water is foremost on people's minds now, residents are encouraged not to overlook the importance of recycling other items usually considered to be trash.

There are several excellent reasons to recycle. It's a way to conserve dwindling natural resources such as metals and wood. It can help reduce the litter which pollutes the environment and the solid waste which fills dumps. And it's a way to save energy since recycling requires less energy than producing virgin material.

The Co-op at David and Lighthouse in New Monterey recently opened a "complete recycling center" as a joint effort with the Monterey Peninsula Garbage and Refuse Disposal District. This recycling center is collecting aluminum, ferrous metals, glass, newspaper and cardboard.

Other Peninsula collection points — and what can be deposited at each one — are: Carmel — Carmel Rancho, behind Brinton's — glass;

Carmel Valley-Mid-Valley Center, behind Safeway — newspapers;

Monterey-Main fire station across from the library, Pacific and Madison — glass;

Pacific Grove-Fire station, in the parking lot off 18th St. — glass.

Seaside-Main fire station, Hillsdale and Olympia — glass; LDS Church, Noche Buena and Plumas — newspaper;

Marina-Fire Station behind the post office, Palm Ave. — glass.

The following guidelines to the preparation of recyclable material is offered by the Co-op:

Aluminum — cans (may be identified as seamless, lightweight, non-magnetic and often labelled as all-aluminum) should be emptied and mashed. Foil and foil-type items (TV dinner trays, pie pans, pudding cups) should be clean. Aluminum housewares such as kettles and coffee pots should have all non-aluminum fixtures removed.

Ferrous metals — Cans should be rinsed out, both ends opened and flattened. Other items such as large appliances which are too large for the bins can be taken to the Marina Dump and left free of charge.

Glass — Bottles and other glass containers should be rinsed out and lids removed. No auto glass, mirrors, ceramics, fluorescent tubes or light bulbs should be deposited in the glass containers.

Paper — Newspaper only, tied in bundles or slid into large grocery bags.

Cardboard — Corrugated. Boxes should be flattened.

Some Tips on Taps

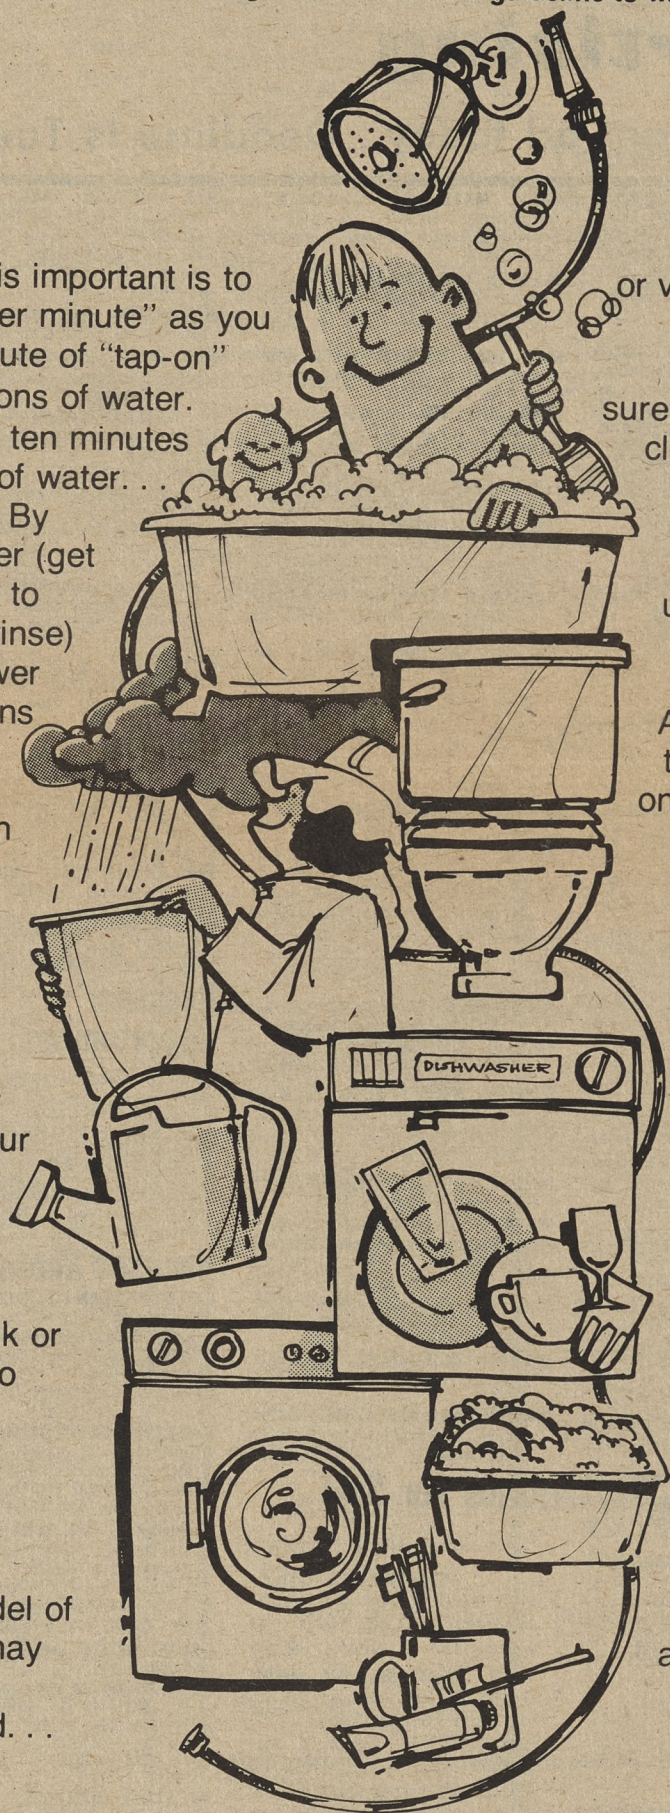

We all know running water continues to deplete water supplies on the Monterey Peninsula . . . You, the community have responded well to the challenge of water conservation. As the drought lingers on, however, we are urged to keep a constant vigil on water consumption and to be creative in our water-use curtailment.

We thought some helpful rules of thumb might well serve as a guideline to water conservation efforts.

The first thing that is important is to try to think "gallons per minute" as you run the tap. Each minute of "tap-on" time means eight gallons of water.

A normal shower of ten minutes can mean 80 gallons of water. . . relaxing, but wasteful. By taking a shorter shower (get wet, turn the water off to scrub up, back on to rinse) you can cut your shower use to two to six gallons . . . not as relaxing, but just as effective.

Letting the water run while you brush your teeth can mean 10 gallons of water down the drain. If you use a cup or glass to hold water for dipping your brush and rinsing your mouth, you can cut your water use to eight ounces or less! Compare washing dishes by hand, using one sink or tub to wash, and one to rinse, with using your automatic dishwasher. Depending on the size of your family, the frequency of washing, and the make and model of your dishwasher you may use less with the appliance than by hand. . .

or vice-versa. Call the rationing hotline at 375-5117 to learn the rated capacity. Make sure you're washing full loads of clothes each time you run the machine. To be sure weigh each load . . . if you're only guessing, you're probably underestimating. The hotline can give you the rated capacity of most models.

Almost everyone is following the rule of thumb of flushing only solid waste. When toilets use five to seven gallons of water per flush, it's a poor water choice to flush away facial tissues, spiders and such.

Although residential users may water their plants and lawns, it only takes about six minutes of running a hose to use up one person's entire allotment for the day.

We realize these are just the basic measures for a good water conservation effort. Keeping a constant check on your meter and using imagination and inventiveness can mean great additional savings and ease the threat in this time of crisis.

We'd like to hear some of your ideas or methods of water saving. We can pass them on in future ads so everyone may profit by them. Please call our rationing Hot-Line or write to us at California-American Water Co. P.O. Box 951, Monterey, 93940.

Water conservation is everybody's business!
